Place your fingers on the pulse of one, two, three, four. With every four of those quick throbs, day and night a thousand dollars clatters into the gold-bin of the American farm- dustrial education.

How incomprehensible it would her Golden Age, if he could know try is now no more than one day's pay for the men who till the soil of this infant republic.

Or, how it would amaze a resurrected Christopher Columbus if he were told that the revenue of Spain and Sol Kohn. Portugal are not nearly as much as mers' hen!

Merely the crumbs that drop from the farmer's table (otherwise known as agricultural exports) have brought since 1892 to enable him, if he wishrailroad in the United States.

Such is our New Farmer-a man few weeks. for whom there is no name in any mer of the story-books as a 1900 touring car is above a jinrilkisha. Instead of being an ignorant hoeman in a barnyard world, he gets the news by daily mail and telephone, and incidentally publishes 800 trade journals of his own. Instead of being a moneyless peasant, he pays the interest on the mortgage with the earnings of a week. Even this is less of an expense than it seems for he borrows money from himself, out of his own bank, and spends the bulk of the tax money around his own properties.

Farming for a business, not for a living-this is the motive of the new farmer. He s a commercialista man of the twentieth century. He works as hard as the old farmer did, but in a higher way. He uses the four M's-mind, money, machinery and muscle; but as little of the latter as possible.

Neither is he a Robinson Crusoe of the soil, as the old farmer was. His hermit days are over; he is a man among men. The railway, the trolley, the automobile, and the top buggy have transformed him into suburbanite. In fact his business has become so complex and manysided that he touches civilization at more points and lives a larger life a crowded city.

All American farmers, of course, are not of the new variety. The country is like the city, has its slums. for exceptions, it is still true that of the new farmer. He is the most typical human product that this country has produced, and the most important, for, in spite of his egotistical cites, the United States is still a farm based nation .- Herbert N. Casson, in May Review of Reviews.

Several freaks of nature have been reported to this office in the last week. Mr. J. K. Wannamaker reports a chicken hatched on his place a man, and Mr. T. L. Gobe Aiken reports the hatch of four chicks deaf and dumb, and Mr. Jas. Smoak gave us an egg weighing over a quarter of a pound. The county board of registration opened their books for the registration of voters the books to remain open through the months of July and August, as required by the special act passed by the last general assembly. Gov. Ansel has sent to all boards of registration a copy of the act with an opinion by the attorney general on the requirements. It is absolutely necessary for the voters of the State to register this year, the constitution requiring that this be done once every ten years.
